

INSTITUTE OF ARCHAEOLOGY AND DEPARTMENT OF ANTHROPOLOGY

MSc IN

INTRODUCTION

- the ability to apply anthropological and archaeological method and theory to individual case studies.
3. Practical skills in:
- identifying skeletal remains and material culture relevant to these periods.
  - collecting and analyzing data using appropriate methods.
  - reporting scientific results to publication standards.

Learning Outcomes

In addition to the above, on completion of this degree, students should have transferable skills which will enable them:

- to develop, conduct and manage extended programmes of research.
- to present clear oral and written reports on research undertaken.

degree, or th

of this handbook, but for full information see the individual module handbooks. Students are expected to use the third term and the summer to work on their dissertations which count for 50% of their degree mark.

If students are pursuing the degree on a part-time basis, students will normally be expected to take the compulsory core module and two optional modules in the first year and the dissertation and two optional modules in the second. They must agree their choice of modules with the Degree Coordinator. They may start work on the dissertation at the same time as full-time students, or they may wish to start later; either way they should consult the Degree Coordinator, and their Dissertation Supervisor, once the latter has been appointed.

TEACHING METHODS

Modules on this Masters' programme are normally taught through a combination of lectures and seminars. Some modules will also have associated practicals, laboratory sessions, or field trips. Seminars are run differently by the various Module Coordinators, but all have weekly recommended readings, which students will be expected to have done, to be able fully to follow and actively to contribute to discussion. Some modules may require the student to make a seminar presentation; if so, this will be indicated in the module handout.

COURSEWORK

Detailed guidance on the production, submission and assessment of coursework can be found in Chapter 13 of the Institute of Archaeology Student Handbook and the Institute of Archaeology 840.9o13/F2 9.96 Tf1 0 0

LIBRARIES AND OTHER RESOURCES

The most important libraries in UCL relating to the subject matter of this degree are the Institute of Archaeology Libr

the origins of the genus Homo; (d) first hominin migrations out of Africa; (e) the origin and demise of Neanderthals; (f) the origins and dispersals of modern humans; (g) mysterious human species.

Timetable: Term 1: Thursdays 11.00-13.00 (MSc seminars); Fridays 09.00-11.00 or 11.00-13.00 (Lab session); Tuesdays 11.00-13.00 (BSc lectures online) You need to take each of these.

Assessment: 70% essay (2,500 words)