

PLIN0081: Semantics and Pragmatics II

2023/24 Module information sheet

Lecturers:

Part I: Tim Pritchard – t.pritchard@ucl.ac.uk

Part II: Nathan Klinedinst – nathank@ucl.ac.uk

Course description : The module falls into two parts.

Part I (first 3 lectures) is a continuation of Part II of PLIN0045. It looks in more depth at pragmatics: the nature of communication, the relation between language and communication, and some recent approaches to the study of communication.

Part II (last 7 lectures)

Prerequisites : PLIN0045

Teaching methods and backup arrangements

Students attend lectures and assigned 1.5 hour work-group sessions

A full UCL library catalogue and on-line resources can be found at <http://www.ucl.ac.uk/library/main.shtml>

Additional information:

The lecture handouts and weekly reading materials will be put on-line a couple of days before the lecture. Please print a copy and bring it with you in class.

Assessment: ( see moodle page for details)

Essay 1 (1500 words) Assignment (35%)

Essay 2 (1500 words) Assignment (65%)

Citing of sources: Students are expected to have worked through the information on Plagiarism and Plagiarism detection at <http://www.ucl.ac.uk/ioe-writing-centre/reference-effectively-avoid-plagiarism/plagiarism-guidelines>

Late work and extenuating circumstances

Any requests for extensions to deadlines, or for extenuating circumstances to be taken into consideration by examiners, should be made by completing the relevant form. Instructions are available on the Moodle page for this module, under the Assessment tab. No extensions or special consideration can be given outside of this process, and there is a grading penalty for late submission of coursework. Again, information about this policy can be found on the course Moodle page, under the 'Assessment' tab.

Feedback

See below for information on how feedback is provided.

Transferable skills

See below for information on the transferable skills you will acquire by studying this course.

---

---

